BARRINGER HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF 2004 BEAR FACTS

DETERMINE

Who was Dr. Barringer?

Dr. William Barringer was born in Brunswick Renssaeler County, N.Y. in 1826. Having the desire for higher education, he went to Troy Academy and from there Union College in New York. At the age of seventeen he was teaching school. He continued for three years and then switched to studying medical science. After he became a doctor he was offered a job as principal of the two largest schools in Troy. He accepted but continued his studies in chemistry and physics.. In 1866, Dr. Barringer came to Newark and became the principal of the Chestnut Street School.

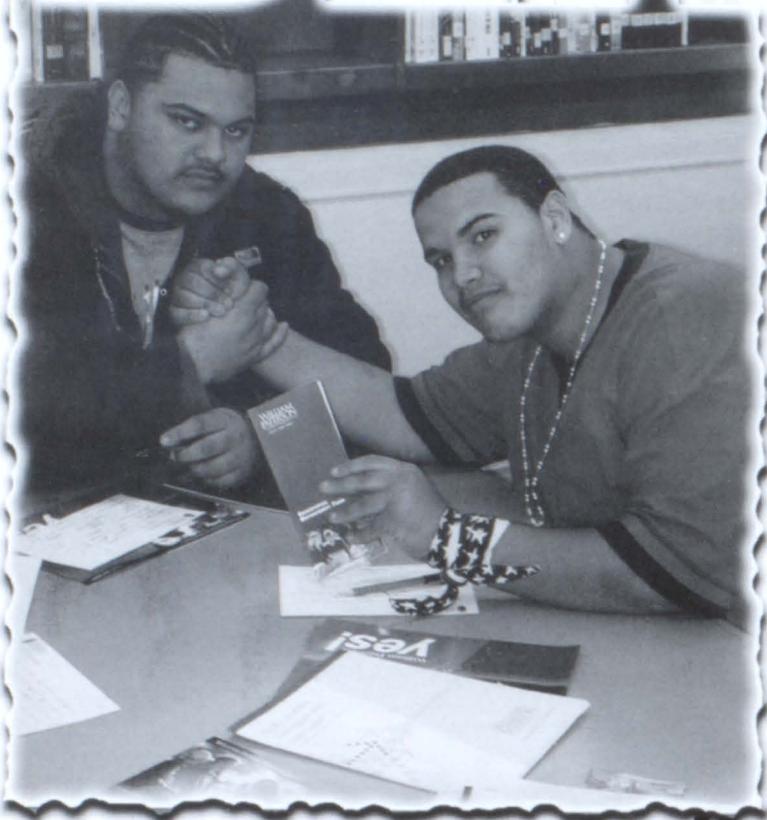

He held that post for 22 years until he was chosen superintendent in 1877. He remained as superintendent for 19 years.

Dr. Barringer was a very influential factor in the establishment of the summer and night schools. He was most influential in establishing the school curriculum. He also established playgrounds and ungraded schools. In 1907, when Dr. Barringer died, Newark High School changed its name to Barringer Prep in his honor, and then finally, at a later date, the school became Barringer High School.

First Free Public School

Only parents who could afford the teachers services would send their children to private school. In 1714 a schoolhouse was established by the community. It was located on the south side of Market Street. Later, a second schoolhouse was built on Orange Street. In 1775, an academy (Newark Academy) was built, but it only accepted pupils whose parents could pay for their board and lodging. As the town grew, so did its educational facilities. Most of the schools were still private with paying scholars. The education of poor children was provided by money from the "poor fund."

When Newark became a city in 1836, a new charter was adopted, providing for public schooling. The first Council set aside $3500.00 as evidence of support for free education. However, nothing really changed. Public Schools were still scorned as education houses for the unfortunate. A new City School Committee independent of the school committee of the Common Council was appointed. General Andruss was named chairman of the committee, and the Rev. William R. Weeks was appointed "supervisor" at an annual salary of one hundred dollars. It was his duty "to visit from time to time, the several schools in which the poor children are placed and note their progress and advise with the teachers as to the mode on instructing poor children."

The original high school house was actually the first story of a building on Bank Street. The school had a faculty of one: Mr. Nathan Hedges, who exercised complete and undisputed authority over his 91 pupils. In 1838, these pupils were admitted on certificate from the School Committee of the Common Council.

The Plight of the High School Teacher

In 1855, when the first state teachers college was established in Trenton, facilities were hastily created to educate Newark's teachers. A Saturday morning "Normal School" for all teachers who had not been certified by the president of the Board of Education was to be held at Newark High School.

Teachers protested that five days in the classroom were enough, particularly for the pay they were receiving, but the administration stood firm. The Normal School opened in April 1855, with 9 male teachers and 35 female teachers from Newark schools among the 85 students. Others were would-be-teachers, hopeful that the school board would turn to the Normal School for its future faculty. Entrance requirements were simple: about eight years of schooling, with emphasis on the "about."

Teachers trudged to the high school every Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for classes in spelling, reading, geography, history, etymology, algebra, synonyms, natural philosophy and intellectual philosophy. The school term extended from September through July. Prospective teachers studied about 720 hours to earn a certificate. When they completed the four year course, they might aspire to a salary like that of Isaiah Peckham, who received the princely sum of $19.74 a week. He was the highest paid teacher in 1855.

The Second Building Opens

Although Newark High School opened its doors in 1838, about 1850, a Board of Education was created to institute an official public school system. In 1852, the Board of Education authorized the obtainment of a building on the corner of Washington and Linden Streets. This new high school building was purchased for $25,000.00. It was originally named Newark High School, but later changed to barringer High School. On January 7, 1853, although still incomplete, this new building was opened. It was three stories high and had a student population of 498 boys and girls. The second floor was used exclusively by the girls, the third floor only by the boys. Since the boys and girls were separated into two distinct departments, they were not allowed to mingle wither during or after school. Inside the brick building were two large classrooms, each containing 190 double desks; 8 small "recitation" rooms; and on the boys floor, in addition to its large rooms, 4 recitation rooms and a library.

Because of growing enrollment, the board of education then realized that anew high school was necessary. The class of 1898 was the last to graduate from the Washington and Linden Street building. Construction of the new school, which cost $300,000.00 was completed in 1899. It was in a section of town in Newark know as the "goat hill" area. Currently, this location is the faculty parking lot, because that's where the old Barringer High School once stood.

In 1951, the Newark Board of Education requested a study on the condition of the Barringer High School plant. The Ackley report recommended abandoning the school plant at the earliest date possible due to flaws that caused the school to be in a state of deteriorating condition. On February 17, 1961 $5,050,000.000 was allocated for the new school. The new Barringer which we attended opened on Thursday, September 10, 1964.

A Most Influential Alumnus

William Joseph Brennan was born in Newark in 1906 and graduated from Barringer High School in 1924. As a student, he participated on the Acropolis Newspaper and played on the football, baseball and track teams. After graduating from Barringer in 1924, Mr. Brennan attended the esteemed Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania. He graduated from the university in 1928, with a bachelors degree, cum laude, in economics. Mr. Brennan then won a scholarship to the prestigious Harvard Law School, where one of his professors was Felix Frankfurter, who later became a colleague on the Supreme Court. He graduated in 1931, among the top 10 students in his class.

In 1949, Brennan was appointed to the state Superior Court for his work reforming the state constitutional and judicial system. He later became promoted to the state appeals court and then to the New Jersey Supreme Court in 1952, by Governor Alfred Driscoll. A speech Brennan gave in May 1956 to a conference on court congestion and delay, held in Washington at the Department of Justice, brought him to the attention of the Eisenhower Administration and earned him a seat on the Supreme Court.

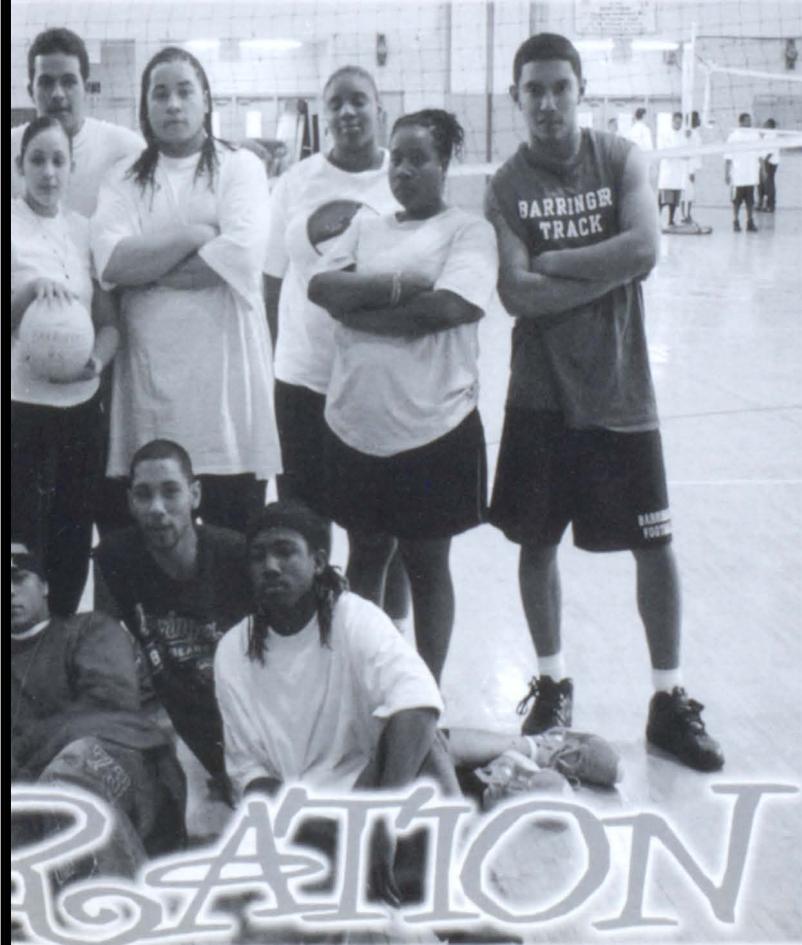

Justice Brennan spent 34 years interpreting the constitution. He is known for his written documents, such as school desegregation, free speech, welfare rights and criminal procedures.

Justice Brennan died at a nursing home in suburban Virginia, where he was recuperating from a broken hip. He left a legacy that is visible everywhere in law and in American political and social life. Alumnus William Brennan is a man that should serve as a role model for Barringer students. His rise from a school boy in Newark to become Justice on the most powerful court in the country is an example of what one can accomplish if they make education their priority.

School Colors

In 1892, to distinguish Newark High on the athletic field, the colors blue and white were adopted as the school colors. A silver shield with a white band across it was adopted as the school pin. Inscribed on this pin were the initials N.H.S. By the turn of the century, Newark High School had attained considerable character and personality.

STUDENT LIFE

The seniors came pouring in locked, cocked and ready to rock, looking their best for their graduation pictures. The girls were knockouts and the guys came straight out of GQ magazine. Everyone was excited to take their pictures that will finally secure them a place in the class of 2004.

It was a little odd to see all of their classmates dressed so handsomely and looking so elegant. It felt as if they were looking into the future as they all got reacquainted in the 10th annual reunion.

The past 4 years has definitely been an incredible time to remember. And just in case they forget, these pictures will always be there in this annual to remind classmates of the good and bad times here at B.H.S.

The Senior Class Committee provides seniors with an opportunity to have a voice in the many decisions the class advisors encounter. This year they participated in many activities such as the Photo Fantasies, Calendar, and Zodiac contests, and other fund raisers to collect money for all senior class activities. This money finances the expenses that seniors are confronted with before they graduate. Throughout the years, members work to make the senior year both enjoyable and memorable for their fellow classmates. Advisors to the Senior Class are Mrs. Malik and Ms. Parsons.

The yearbook is a window to the past. It reminds one of the good and bad times, and of the good old high school days. Making a yearbook is a time honored tradition, as well as time consuming, and this year was no different. The sentimental value will increase as the years go by. So as the editor of this years edition, I am happy to say that I am proud of this annual, and the yearbook staff of 2004 who helped produce it. I am proud of their hard work on the Athenaeum Yearbook: The Bear Facts of 2004.

Photography is an important tool in the fields of fine arts, merchandising, journalism, advertising, television, publishing, and computer graphics. Although not currently offered as a course in the art department, Barringher students have always had a strong interest in this club. Students with cameras are often seen walking about school throughout the year shooting pictures of the events taking place in the school. They then learn the techniques involved in developing negatives and creating prints in the darkroom. Photography members also learn how to use a digital camera and output their images into print. Thanks to the hard work of the photographers and the guidance of advisor, Mr. DiGerlando, our photographers have been able to capture the candid emotions of students, faculty, etc. around the school and publish them in the yearbook and newspaper.

The Art Club is an after school program where students can express their feelings and ideas in creative ways. In the Art Club, members create and advance their skills in art. We learn about entrepreneurship, in which we get to sell our artwork. We also get the opportunity to enter contests and chances to exhibit our artwork in galleries and museums.

This year was the first time ever that the members of the Art Club were invited to exhibit in Asia's Art Gallery in Maplewood, NJ. They exhibited nineteen pieces and they sold four pieces. They also exhibited ten pieces in the Newark Museum. This year in the Lead Poster Contest members entered eight pieces and seven of those won. In the Fire Poster Contest, they ended up capturing three out of four winners. The Art Club created their own t-shirts that they were proud enough to wear to the annual trip to the museums and galleries of New York City.

It was another wonderful year at Barringer, as the Flag Twirlers impressed us once again. This is a group with a lot of stamina. They go out on the field twirling their flags and supporting the Blue Bears with school spirit. This group is responsible for the presentation of the United States and Barringer flags at the football games. Through their daily practice sessions, they develop new precise marching techniques to be used at the half-time each Saturday during the season. Flag Twirling takes skill, cooperation, enthusiasm, and most of all, practice. Working closely as a team gives each member a sense of personal as well as cooperative satisfaction. All the hard working young ladies in this group were chosen by tryouts. The squad helps create color and movement in the marching routines of the marching band.

BHS Curricular Fair

The library was beaming with all the great work accomplished by the student's of Barringer High. The displays were informative and interesting, especially the Robotic exhibition, presented by the Robotics Club. The advances in technology impressed all the observers. How cool it was that the shine of a regular flashlight could activate this complex machine to complete a series of tasks all by itself, thanks of course, to its programmers. Because of the timeline displayed in Mrs. Rice's class, people were able to see the evolution of the human mind as it increased technology and enhanced the world utilizing all types of devices to make life easier. Observers were also impressed with the 3D art presented by Ms. Alamo's Art Club. When viewers put on the 3D glasses, the hand painted pictures popped in glowing vision. Of course no one could forget the remarkable exhibition of Mrs. Pickett's beads class. Such intricate patterns and beautiful design dazzled the eyes and mind. The short performance by students in Mrs. Baskerville's drama club was dynamic. It is easy to see why Barringer is one of the big contenders in speech, drama and forensics competitions. There was nothing in the library that didn't get an "oh" or "ah" from students, teachers and administrators who visited the curriculum fair. The exhibit was informative and fun to experience. Everyone agreed that the Curriculum Fair was a great success.

The Bear Facts: 165 Years Later

In 1838, when Nathan Hedges, the first Newark secondary school instructor, opened the door to his one room house, his objective was to create an extension of the elementary school. Without the expansion and enrichment of its programs before the end of the nineteen century, the remarkable development of Newark High School would have never taken place. Public demand then made Newark High a connecting link between primary and higher education. One hundred and sixty five years later, Barringer's task is to serve students with wide differences in background and ability, many of whom pursue no further formal education.

When glancing through copies of The High School Journal, and later The Acropolis, the most important bear fact becomes prominent: the picture of a school rich in tradition and proud of its educational record.

Since changes in American lifestyles have forced all the familiar social institutions- home, family, community, and religion, to modify their functions, so too has the school been affected. At the dawn of the twenty first century, it is an overwhelming fact that students and faculty alike are faced with the challenge of revising the direction our school will pursue. Hopefully, we graduates are prepared to take on the task of forging forth to meet the controversial years ahead.

ALMA MATER

Over many a city old,
Famed in song and story.
Temple grey and castle hold
Catch the sunset glory.
So our Alma Mater proud
Looks o'er vale and meadow
High between the sailing cloud
And its drifting shadow.

For her colors, first the blue
Of the April valley;
Then December's wintery hue
When the storm winds rally.
Newark High, thy fame we raise,
Many voices blending;
Through the years
We pledge thee praise.
Loyal to life's ending.
